

400 girls live here - many of them are orphans and others are from very poor, mainly one-parent families who are unable to support them. The orphanage is run by a small group of dedicated Buddhist nuns who also oversee the school which teaches over 1000 local children. We pay the wages for 10 teachers and help towards food costs. In the past few years we have helped fund the expansion of the school which now gives education up to high school level.
